Tables overflow with a cornucopia of pie varieties during the holidays, often culminating in a seasonal syndrome known as sweet fatigue. But one need not give up the flaky, buttery crust; SAVORY PIES forego the sugar in favor of hearty, winter-approved tillings that need zero sweet-talk to get your attention.

Pull on your cowboy boots and get ready to take a culinary ride at THE RANCH. The upscale restaurant is a destination for food lovers and country-philes alike. Stop in for their seasonal pot pie filled with pheasant, celery root, pearl onions, young carrots, and turnips, then two-step it off at the next-door saloon.
